

This picture is inspired by an artist's impression of a galaxy named ID2299*, which is slowly losing its mass through a feature called a "tidal tail". Similarly, in Alzheimer's disease, the hippocampus gradually shrinks over time. This comparison highlights the slow, inevitable progression of both cosmic and neurological decline.

* <https://www.eso.org/public/images/eso2101a/>